A DELIGHTFUL cruise down the river, was made on Tuesday on the Northwest Trading Co.'s steam launch. On account of the low water at Clover Bar she could not be taken below that point, so the party disembarked on the southern bank and lunch was served. The return trip was made in the cool of the evening and was even more pleasant, if such was possible, than the down stream journey had been.

The largest, if not the only, piece of coarse gold ever found on the Saskatchewan was brought into town the other day, having been found by Dan Graham while drifting mining on "Kusty Bar," about eight miles below town. The gold is similar to that found in the Klondike and is not unlike a rolled out in size and shape. It shows the action of water, having been worn smooth and shiny. The piece found is worth only about ten cents. It is now in the possession of Peter Anderson.

GARDNER & ANDERSON are in receipt of a letter from W. S. Johnston, of Montreal, written from Fort Graham, in which he gives some interesting figures as to the time he took to make the trip from Edmonton to his present winter camp. When Magdalen bay was reached, a large steamer, thinking also that the Imperieuse belonged to Spain's fleet, attempted to get out of sight. Her effort was unsuccessful, as the British vessel, thinking the steamer was in distress, overhauled her, and only then showed her colors, much to the American's relief.

THE making of the Canadian West is the title of a well bound volume by R. G. McBeth, M. A. The title fully suggests the nature of the work, which tells in pleasing style of the growth and development of the west and narrates many stirring incidents of the first Reil rebellion and the uprising of '84 and '85, to both of which is lent by the author's personal experience. The political history of the west and its educational growth are also dealt with. The work throughout is profusely illustrated, among the views being one of old Fort Edmonton from a painting in the possession of the Hardisty family. It is a work which every western man should read, and not only every western man, but every Canadian and every man interested in the growth, development and future of Canada's great west.

SESSION NOTES.

Ottawa, May 19, '98.

The session drags. Business is not pushed and the end is not yet in sight. Only a comparatively small portion of the main estimates are passed, there are supplementaries for the current year now before the house, and the supplementaries for the coming year are not yet down. Days have been taken upon in fruitless discussion on the clauses of the franchise act; on the cost of a stone fence around Major Hill park, on the refusal of the postmaster general to reply to any enquiry while his postage reduction bill was in progress, on the alien labor question and on imperial preferential trade. At the same time a number of government notices of possibly important amendments to important acts have appeared on the order paper and there are rumors of a new Yukon railway deal to be presented to-morrow. To-day is a holiday, Saturday is a holiday and Tuesday next, May 24th, is a holiday. Many of the members went home yesterday and will not return until Wednesday next. The natural supposition would be that the absence of a number of members would lessen discussion and therefore expedite business. Unfortunately this is not the case. If the absentee member is of importance on either side measures in which he is interested are held over to await his coming, either by consent or by his friends talking against time. If he is not of importance he comes back with a new crop of ideas or complaints, especially if on the opposition side, and which he feels compelled to air at all costs, to the further delay of important business and the further lengthening of the session. This session commenced on Feb. 3rd, and will certainly run on past June 3rd, and possibly to July 3rd, a period of certainly four and possibly five months—and that without a shadow of excuse in the amount of or importance of the business transacted. The leaders of both the government and of the opposition are to some extent responsible for this delay. Important government measures are being kept back rather than pushed forward, no doubt with the hope of using bodily weariness and urgency of private business of the members to prevent discussion and possibly disarm criticism. The opposition have interminably debated minor points and questions thereby helping on the cause of delay and assuming chief responsibility for it. But beyond and above all the majority of the private members residing within twelve hours railway ride of Ottawa are responsible for the delay of business by their weekly journeys home. During all the early part of the session Mondays and Fridays are days upon which government business is not transacted, therefore party reasons do not require the presence of members in the house. They are able to go home on Thursday night and return on Tuesday morning. This gives them three days of each week, as half their time, to attend to their private affairs and is of immense advantage to them. They do not need to care whether the session is a month longer or shorter. Even when Mondays and Fridays are taken for government business they still have Saturday and Sunday at home and possible they can arrange specially for leave of absence by pairing or otherwise for a day or two more. The actual delays occurring from the repeated absence of such a large number of important members, and worse still their carelessness as to whether business is pushed or not, makes it much easier for the leaders to lengthen the session if it suits their purpose. A majority of the members reside, if not within twelve hours ride of Ottawa at least so little further that they would oppose the curtailment of the abuse which is of growing proportions, for the reason that they might desire to share in its advantage. The members from the outlying provinces and particularly those from the west are the sufferers by all this unnecessary delay. They are so far from home that nothing short of the loss of from one to two weeks would be of any use to them. Some of the members from Nova Scotia and New Brunswick are in much the same situation, but altogether they are not sufficiently numerous to secure the consideration of their interests. When members have arranged for the conduct of their business during a prospective absence of three to four months, and have no opportunity of making a re-arrangement for a continuation of the period, the lengthening of the session assumes a very serious aspect for them. Far different from what it does to the member who can either spend half his time at home, or in any case can look over his business personally once a week. There is no doubt that railway passes are largely responsible for this evil, which is accentuated by the expansion of the privilege of pairing.

That is, A. of the government side wants to absent himself from the house, he goes to B, who is a personal friend of his on the opposition side, represents his case to him and gets his agreement to pair. Should a vote come on while A is absent B, even if present, agrees not to vote. This arrangement leaves the respective strength of government and opposition the same as if A was in his place and is an accommodation to him. When B, or some friend of B's, wants to go away of course A returns the compliment. The arrangement is recorded by the whips of both sides and is recognized as proper and binding, although not binding by rule. Used within reasonable limits it is a valuable and desirable privilege under party government, but it is being used to such an extent as to become a grave abuse. When A or B, who have been away, come back they then take up the business which they should have been attending to, and possibly new discussions are started on points that already were practically disposed of.

The franchise bill has received its third reading. An amendment was moved by Sir Charles Tupper and Hon Mr. Foster providing for an appeal in the preparation of voters' lists to the judges in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Manitoba. This was defeated by a strictly party vote of 88 to 48.

Mr. McNeill, M. P., for North Bruce, by special arrangement addressed the house on Imperial preferential trade yesterday. It appeared from his remarks that he was not satisfied with the preference given Britain and her other colonies by Canada, but wanted Britain to give Canada a preference by imposing duties on food products from other countries. He held that the government should have attempted negotiations with the British government to that end. As this question belonged properly to the tariff debate and had practically been disposed of for the session in the adoption of the tariff propositions, and as the members were impatient of anything which did not pertain to the pressing business of the session, the discussion attracted less attention than it probably deserved. An amendment to Mr. McNeill's motion declaring satisfaction with the government's proposals, was moved by Hon. Mr. Blair. In the absence of the premier through indisposition, Sir Charles Tupper asked that the debate be adjourned.

Mr. McCleary, of Welland, asked for a more stringent alien labor act, and spoke of the unfriendliness which had been manifested by the United towards Canada.

The premier said that he would not favor any amendment of the law towards greater stringency at the present time. He would rather suffer possible injustice for a time than create the impression that Canada had any disposition to take advantage of the circumstances in which the United States was placed at the present time.

Supplementary estimates for the current year ending June 30th, '98, have been laid on the table. These are to meet expenditures incurred or about to be incurred over and above the amounts contained in the main and supplementary estimates voted at last session of parliament, which including expenditures authorized by statute amounted to $45,980,723, with the addition of the supplementaries now submitted $1,460,354, the total estimates for the current year reach $47,441,077. So far the total amount asked for the following year ending June 30th, '99, is $44,912,571, but the supplementaries and possible supplementary supplementaries are still to be heard from. Of these supplementaries $1,287,344 is charged to capital, being chiefly connected with railways and canals, and $134,991, charged to income, and $38,018 to pay items not provided for by the vote for '97. On consolidated fund account the total was $39,282,147, which with $134,981 of these supplementaries added makes $39,417,158 for the current year against $39,125,879 appearing in the main estimates for next year. When it is remembered that the plebiscite vote will have to be provided for there is very little doubt that the expenditure on consolidated fund account this year will go over $40,000,000. The economy which the Globe recently took upon itself to preach to single constituencies does not seem to be much in evidence in these estimates.

Amongst the items are:

Further amount to pay outstanding accounts in connection with Territorial exhibition held at Regina 1894, including $3,625, being a re-vote, the same having lapsed in 1896-97, $4,000.

Further amount required to promote the establishment and maintenance of creameries in the Northwest Territories, $10,000.

Bow river bridge, Banff repairs, $2,500.

L. S., in recognition of his distinguished public services in connection with the survey and exploration of the Yukon district, $50,000.

Amount required to maintain a force of mounted police in the Yukon provisional district, including $300,000 authorized by governor-general's warrant, $500,000.

BY THE RIVER ROUTE

The following extracts are from a letter which appeared in the Toronto Mail-Empire of a late date written from the Landing by a member of a Klondike expedition en route to the north:

The last month and a half has been one of unusual activity here. Boat building has been the chief occupation. Each day has added one or more parties to the number and the population is steadily increasing. Where I am sitting I can count forty crafts in the water ready to receive their loads. Ten of the number are Hudson's Bay company's freight barges, of ten tons each. Their loads will supply the forts down the river. The remaining thirty are scows, York boats, and large canoes, of all forms and sizes, but the majority are scows with good run fore and aft. One wise precaution taken by nearly all the miners is that they load only five tons in an eight or ten ton boat. There is abundance of lumber here for all boat-building. The Hudson's Bay Co. have a portable mill, which furnishes first class spruce timber. Yesterday two miners came down the Athabasca on a raft from Lesser Slave lake. They report that several parties who left Edmonton with canoes have got through as far as the Peace river.

There are three steamers here, which will start as soon as completed. Of these the Alaska Trading company is building the largest. The boat is only put together temporarily, to be built permanently below the rapids. I have not learned, nor cannot find out, their mode of getting the great number of passengers down to the end of the rapids, that is at Fort Smith. Mr. George Leitch, a capitalist, of Minneapolis, Minn., has a steamer about ready to be launched, of thirty tons, twin screw, staterooms for fifty passengers. The other boat is a private party's boat I learn that Dr. Lister, of Detroit, is now at Edmonton. His party has a steel sectional steamer. The Hudson Bay Company, whose agents have acquired by experience their knowledge of the country, are the best authority that can be got on the rivers. It has its own steamers on the rivers. The mails are carried by them, and miners will receive their letters and papers (though somewhat late owing to the great tract of country to be travelled) if they leave word of their intended route before starting. The most of the miners here are headed for the Peel river. Quite a number are going up the Liard river and portage around Hell's Gate and over the Devil's portage.

At the Grand rapids there is a portage of one-half mile, and again at Fort Smith there is a portage of some sixteen miles for boats drawing more than two feet. If the boat draws two feet or less the portage can be shortened to about one mile. Most of the miners' boats will not draw more than eighteen inches, so with the aid of guides the portaging will not be so severe, as the Hudson Bay Company has thrown its tramway open to the use of the miners or will transport the goods for one and one-half cents per pound. From the best authority the dangers of this route are greatly magnified.

The writer also states that the Clatworthy party paid $2,500 legal charges in connection with the dissolution of their partnership here.

ANOTHER YUKON RAILWAY.

An Ottawa report to the Winnipeg Tribune says the belief is that it may be taken for granted that there will be another Yukon railway contract, and that it will be introduced in the Commons to day. The British Columbia having voted a million six hundred thousand cash subsidy, strong pressure is being made to have the Dominion government supplement this in order to insure the construction of the road. The cabinet is believed to be working on the contract and it is said that a subsidy in lands in the Yukon will likely be ten or twelve thousand acres per mile for 400 miles, making a gross land subsidy larger than the old contract. The feeling here seems to be that the government may give all the lands it likes to secure the construction of the railway, but there is undoubtedly a strong sentiment, especially among Ontario members, against giving any cash to the road. The conviction seems to be that what the country wants is the trade of the Yukon and that the lands are of practically no value to the country and might just as well be devoted by a company as by the country from a revenue producing standpoint. The idea that the Klondike must pay for the Klondike has a strong hold on the members. If no new contract is made a bill of indemnity for the contractors will have to be brought in and it is said such a bill will be very heavy $300,000 or $400,000 being hinted at.

To whom it may concern:

Speaking of A. E. Potter, of Edmonton, as a practical miner, I have only to speak of personal experience. The washing apparatus which he designed and manufactured for me last season, 1897, gave entire satisfaction. It was capable of most thoroughly washing, separating and saving the gold and black sand of 1 cubic yard gravel per minute. It was a most perfect separator, separating stones from pay dirt first, then the gold, and lastly the black sand.

FROM THE LANDING.
Messrs. W. S. Edmiston and St. Geo. Jellett returned from the Landing on Monday night where they had been on a short outing, having left here on the preceding Thursday.

The changes which the Landing has undergone on account of its boom as the starting point on the great water route to the gold fields, are many and startling. All along the river front for a distance of two miles the tents have clustered—many are yet there and more have gone but left the signs of their owners' tenancy behind, in half deserted, new cut streets which the sign boards on the trees show to have revelled in the names of "The Strand," "Piccadilly" and the "Bowery." Among the parties in camp is the company of A. D. Stewart of Hamilton, and formerly mayor of that city. Mr. Stewart holds the record of having made the cheapest trip on record to the Landing. It only cost him 75c. He put his blankets in the stage and started to walk out expecting the bus would overtake him. It, however, failed to do so and he had to walk all the way, subsisting for a large portion of the trip on some hard tack he had in his pocket and sleeping at night without the cover of his blankets. There are yet fully 250 prospectors in camp, outside of steamboat men, boat builders and H. B. Co. employees. While Messrs. Edmiston and Jellett were there 120 of the Hudson's Bay Co's boatmen arrived from all points, for the purpose of transporting the company's goods to its posts down and up the river. As the Athabasca is condemned and will not run again the company have built 20 or 25 row boats, capable of carrying from seven to ten tons and on these their goods will be transported, each boat taking a crew of eight men. Chief Factor Livock goes down the river with the first flotilla.

One of the parties yet in camp are using the gas from the oil well there for cooking purposes. The gas escapes from a pipe put down at the time of boring and over the mouth they hang their kettles. The flame burns continuously though it can be extinguished if desired.

On the road in the travellers met seventeen boats on freighters wagons, including one steam yacht. About fifty prospectors were also met. The trails are buried for long distances and feed scarce in many places.

TO BOOM SASKATCHEWAN.

Saskatchewan Herald: The board of trade received a letter by last mail from T. O. Davis, M. P., in which he has satisfactory assurance from the government that they will do all in their power to boom Saskatchewan and promote immigration into the district. The agents throughout the United States have been notified to that effect and so has the commissioner in Winnipeg. The superintendent of immigration tells Mr. Davis that they are shortly going to circulate one million copies of pamphlets, and that as the government intend to take up the Saskatchewan district, they want to give a large portion of the pamphlets to us to advertise the district. Material for the pamphlet is wanted, and Mr. Davis wants the board to take the matter up and forward the material as soon as possible. What is wanted is letters from settlers who have come into the country and from delegates, also photographs of the town and farms in the district, showing timber and water, as well as some of the fine scenery, good buildings, etc. Mr. Davis asks the board to assist him, and says if they do the government will boom the district and fill it with people. The house and public generally are taking more interest in our district now than they have in the past. With reference to railway matters, Mr. Davis says the C. P. R. have promised to make improvements so that they will be able to carry it on properly this winter. The government have very little control over this. All they can do is to dock them so much for each trip that the road fails to make during the year, and this they have done. Mr. Davis is positive that the Dauphin road will be built to the banks of the Saskatchewan by the fall of 1899: 125 miles to be built this year, and if we make a strong effort there is no doubt but that we will get it next year.

The entries for this event were Larose's "Blackthorn", Graham's "Volunteer", McLean's "Ollie M." and McNulty's "Cherry Ripe". The winners were: Blackthorn and Volunteer, in the order named.

The green trot, half mile, was won by Wainwright's "Mary Ann".

In the open run, half mile, the entries were Boyce's "Dynamite" and "Roxy", McGillivray's "Chub", Jos. Larose's "Bryan" and Irving's "Tassie". The winners were "Dynamite" and "Roxy".

Pony race, half mile: Sanderson's "Polly" 1st, Gariepy's "Kate" 2nd.

FOOT RACES.

Both the 220 and 100 yard foot races were won by Koble Sutherland.

FOOTBALL AT STONY PLAIN.

The Victoria football team of Edmonton, very appropriately won their first victory on Queen Victoria's birthday, when they drove out to Stony Plain to play their first match with the team there.

On the commencement of play Stony Plain won the toss and elected to kick with the wind. The game started at a quarter to four and in five minutes McKinlay had scored for Stony Plain. This put the Victoria forwards on their mettle and they almost immediately equalized the score through Bryan. After the kick off following the second goal, rapid give and take play was the order for some minutes when McKinlay for Stony Plain again scored leaving the score 2-1 in their favor at half time.

About three minutes after the commencement of play on the last half, McDermott, for the Victoria's, put the score on an equal footing once more, and again, soon after, with nice combination play on the part of the Edmonton forwards, Robertson scored the last goal in the game, leaving Edmonton winners by three to two.

After the game was decided the visiting club was taken in hand and conducted to the picnic ground where every delicacy that could be devised had been prepared. Of the kindness and hospitality which was extended to them the team cannot say enough. Everything possible was done to make their visit an enjoyable one, and needless to say, it succeeded fully. The team appreciate the kindness and trust to be able to return it as well as they can at some future date.
